

For a lot of industries, each year brings with it a number of new trends. For instance, the plastic surgery industry booms with cosmetic upheavals on a yearly basis, and 2021 is certainly not an exception. On that premise, the following article presents the latest plastic surgery trends to expect in 2021.

Fillers and injectables

Faces are now receiving a lot more spotlight than ever before, thanks to selfies, dating apps, and Zoom parties. With that in mind, a lot of people are opting for a more youthful look, meaning more volume in their jawline and getting rid of crow's feet under their eyes. That being said, the trend of facial fillers and injectable Botox has blossomed over 2020 and is continuing into 2021.

Lip treatments

As wearing masks in public is mandatory due to the Covid-19 pandemic, a lot of people are choosing the present moment to get lip treatments. The good thing is that masks offer recovery discretion. Indeed, masks can certainly cover bruising or swelling that occurs after the procedure, which is enticing a lot of people to go for lip treatment procedures. That being said, the lip fillers trend has been gaining a lot of steam and popularity and is not expected to slow down any time soon.

Minimally invasive treatments

As a lot of people are busy with their families and work, they generally stray away from cosmetic procedures. That being said, this roadblock has been taken away thanks to the rise of minimally invasive or non-invasive treatments. The great thing about these treatments is that they require little to no downtime after the procedure, and they span a broad spectrum of areas, such as facial features and skin rejuvenation, for instance.

Brow lifts

While beauty trends constantly change, having good-looking brows will never go out of style. As a matter of fact, now more than ever before, brows have become one of the main features. That being said, brow lifts have been gaining a lot of popularity recently. This incision-based procedure is not only budget-friendly but also takes only a couple of hours and offers results that last for more than a decade.
